NOADSWOOD BEREAVEMENT POLICY

Noadswood is a caring and happy community and we support our students with all aspects of their lives both in and outside of school. We know that bereavement and loss are an inevitable part of learning and that many of our students will experience some form of loss throughout their time with us.

We believe that children and adults alike have the right to:

- Be given space and time to grieve
- When appropriate, be supported in situations where students may be managing friends or family receiving end of life or palliative care.
- Be given support from whichever source is deemed the most appropriate – if possible, of their own choice.
- Encounter a caring environment in which they feel safe to demonstrate grief without fear of judgement.

We recognise:

- That grief may not always be apparent to the onlooker, but its invisibility makes it no less real.
- That differing religions/cultures view death and bereavement from different perspectives and all viewpoints should be taken into consideration and given equal value in the school environment.
- That the death of a child has huge repercussions beyond the immediate teaching/care team of that child and every effort should be taken to inform and deal sensitively with the far reaching contacts.

Introduction

'Every 22 minutes a parent of a child dies that's around 23,600 bereaved children each year. Almost one in every class. Many more are bereaved of a grandparent, sibling, friend, teacher or other significant person in their life'. (Child Bereavement UK, 2017 statistics)

It is almost inevitable therefore, that at some time any school will have to deal with a death that impacts the whole school community. Death is something that we do not like to think about, so when we are faced with it, we often find ourselves underprepared.

Bereavement and loss are an inevitable part of living and growing. Noadswood provides plentiful opportunities for children to develop their own appropriate range of emotional, spiritual and intellectual responses to manage these experiences. Noadswood is a happy and inclusive community and as such, we provide mutual support for all. This policy aims to provide guidance and a framework to support out students and their families in these experiences.

The purpose of this policy is to help everyone within our school community to realise bereavement is a normal, natural part of life which needs to be discussed openly. It outlines ways to respond in caring for the wellbeing of children and staff at a time when they may be in shock, upset and confused, to ensure effective communication takes place, support available for each member of the school community to ensure there is as little disruption as possible to the daily school routine.

This policy has been amended from the Simon Says guidelines and policies and from the Ruth Strauss Foundation.

Aims

1. To identify key staff within the school and LA, resources and further support services to help the whole school community work together.
2. To provide a framework for all staff, teaching and non-teaching, to give guidance in how to deal sensitively and compassionately with difficult and upsetting circumstances including those managing circumstances of palliative care or grief.
3. To have clear expectations about the way school will respond to the death, and provide a nurturing, safe and supportive environment for all.
4. To support pupils and/or staff before (where applicable), during, and after bereavement.
5. To meet the needs of all its children and staff and to be a place that both child and family can rely on, and gain much needed support.
6. For children to have the opportunity to tell their story, express their feelings, share their memories and develop coping strategies through support by sensitive staff.

GUIDELINES FOR STAFF AND GOVERNORS

A death can affect the school community in different ways and often depends on:

- The role the deceased person had within school
- How well known they were in the local community
- Circumstances surrounding the death, particularly suicide or violent deaths

The experience of working with many schools affected by death has taught Simon Says that adults and children benefit from being kept informed. Rumour and gossip can be very damaging and can even lead to both young and old developing the attitude that the death is not a topic to talk about. Children and young people have a healthy curiosity, and if they are not informed of the circumstances or feel they are unable to ask questions, their normal grief process can be obstructed.

GUIDELINES AROUND PRE-BEREAVEMENT

Whilst this policy pertains to students and staff who are grieving, it is important to note that there are many circumstances in which our students may be facing parental bereavement. These circumstances are, of course, individual to each family but may include hospice or palliative care.

The guidelines below, apply to those students who are both grieving or are managing pre-bereavement circumstances.

We will follow the following guidelines when informing staff and governors:

- Where possible, discussion will take place with the family and their wishes taken into account before any decisions are made in relation to how and what to tell the staff and wider school community.
- It is important to consider any cultural or religious implications and seek advice if necessary.
- In the case of bereavement of a child or staff member, ALL staff (including support staff such as lunch time supervisors, PE coaches...) will be informed as soon as possible. This will normally be via a whole staff meeting. Any absent or part time staff will be informed via telephone.
- Give a factual explanation of how the death occurred and if applicable the circumstances of what happened leading up to the death.
- The Senior Leadership team will be prepared for reactions to this news including visible upset and feelings of anger/guilt. Prior to the staff meeting, SLT will plan how to support staff through our LM system. People may connect the incident to their own personal experience of bereavement, so feelings about past bereavements may need to be discussed. This is perfectly natural.
- Ensure a member of SLT is available to members of staff, parents or children if they are finding the situation particularly hard. Seek the advice of external support services as appropriate (see Appendix 4).
- Be prepared to arrange supply cover if necessary.
- Establish one person as a point of contact for the family to ensure free flow of accurate information to and from the school.

- Bereavement support or counselling should be available to all as necessary (requesting external bereavement support if needed – Simon Says, Winston’s Wish, Cruse, Compassionate Friends and the Educational Psychology Service, if psychological de-briefing is thought necessary).
- Arrange staff/pupil condolences with collaborative agreement if felt appropriate.
- Agree a set time for teachers to inform their class what has happened, how this is to be done and EXACTLY what is going to be said. Identify any absent pupils.
- Be prepared to follow this up with a special assembly, memorial service or memorial tree/garden...
- Arrange for the pastoral team and Senior Leadership Team to be on hand at the end of the working day for staff to de-brief and reflect upon the day’s events and to agree upon any further action or support that may need to be put in place. Staff who will be alone that night could be identified and arrangements made for colleagues to contact them by phone if necessary.
- Speed and chaos may be a major factor on a day when a critical incident has happened – the speed and chaos meaning that constant referring to plans and lists is not possible. DON’T WORRY! Be confident enough to go with your gut instinct. Remember that keeping people as informed as possible is always helpful.
- Trained and experience practitioners are available on the Simon Says helpline (02380 647550) should you want to check out ideas during the following days, weeks and months ahead.
- Where possible staff who have requested to attend the funeral or memorial should be released.

GUIDELINES FOR INFORMING STUDENTS

People often think that children do not grieve, but even very young children will want to know what happened, how it happened, why it happened and perhaps most importantly of all, what happens next?

The following guidelines will help you to inform children of the death:

- Identify children who are most likely to be impacted by the news because they had a close relationship with the deceased or are already bereaved to be told together as a separate group. Where possible inform pupils in the smallest group, preferably class or tutor groups. This should be done by adults they know.
- It is always a shock when a death occurs in a school even if it may have been anticipated. Children expect to live forever, and so a fellow student dying can feel quite shocking. Experience has shown that it is more beneficial if all pupils are informed.
- Provide staff with guidelines on how to inform children; be honest, it is ok to say if you don't have the answers but remember to revisit the question at a later date when you do have the answer (See Appendix 1).
- Be prepared for children to say or do the unexpected, experience has shown some responses or apparent lack of response may be upsetting for adults. No apparent response does not mean that a child does not care.
- Try to identify any key answers that you may need to prepare, e.g. the facts about an illness, or dates which may be relevant to the death such as end of school year and changing class or schools.
- End up discussion on a positive note - not all people who are ill or have accidents die - many get better. Perhaps co-ordinate an assembly to end discussion.
- Do pupils want to do an activity to express their thoughts and feelings? Do they want to arrange for representatives to attend the funeral? How will this be managed?

IN THE DAYS AFTER THE DEATH

- It is important to consider any cultural or religious implications and seek advice if necessary.
- Ensure nominated staff with responsibilities for supporting staff and children, are available to do so.

- It may be necessary temporarily to provide staff cover for their normal activities.
- Identify an allocated quiet place where children, young people and staff can go if necessary.
- It is preferable for there to be minimum disruption to the timetable but some flexibility may be required.
- Try to engender an awareness of when people need help and support, particularly those who worked closely with the person who has died and secretaries /administrative staff who are taking telephone calls, dealing with parents etc.
- Through the nominated staff member who has responsibilities for liaising with the individual's family, ascertain their wishes about the school's involvement in the funeral, if any.

In line with the families' wishes consider practical issues such as:

- Sending flowers to the home or to the funeral, making a collection etc...
- Who will attend the funeral?
- Cover for any staff who may be going to the funeral.
- Informing the parents of those pupils who will be involved.
- Possible closure of the school. If this is the case remember to tell lunchtime supervisors, caretaker etc. in advance.

BEREAVEMENT FLOWCHART

This flowchart will support you us when we are responding to a bereavement:

You are informed of a bereavement

Identify the relevant communication pathway (see Appendix 2) and as a team the tasks required and who is best to complete them.

Senior member of the team to contact family – phone call/send card/letter of condolence.

Appointed person from the setting to discuss with the family and child or young person who they want their story shared with and support available to them.

Inform others – staff, families, children and young people of the setting as agreed with the bereaved family, child and young person.

Appointed person to be point of contact for family – discuss funeral arrangements/return to school.

Appointed person arrange to see child or young person at home or in the setting to assess their needs and level of support required at this time.

Appointed person liaise with child or young person and support their return to the setting.

Appointed person ensure significant dates and events for the child or young person are recorded and shared with all staff for future reference (birthdays, anniversaries).

Appointed person continues to assess the needs of the child or young person. Observation, discussion with significant people, including the child or young person regarding their concerns or worries, and outside agencies if required.

Ensure friendships are secure as peer support can be very important

Continue regular contact with the family – show you still care about them and their child or young person.

Sign post to outside agencies if deemed appropriate.

GUIDELINES FOR SUPPORTING A BEREAVED STUDENT RETURN TO SCHOOL

When the child or young person returns to the setting they may want to get straight back into friends, work and routine. They will have been surrounded by grieving family members and often a chaotic household of visitors. School maybe their break from that.

Have some action plans in place to help the child and young people return by:

- Identifying a member of the team who will be the main contact point for them and their family.
- Ensure regular contact, this may be daily or weekly depending on needs and wishes of the family. This helps you understand how they are coping, what support they may need now and in the future, to discuss concerns and worries and plan strategies to cope.
- If they stay at home, remember them. Have cards and messages sent to them from appropriate people (peer group and staff they have good relationships with) Activities such as these will give the other children the opportunity to discuss their own concerns or experiences with the family and help them to feel they are doing something positive to support them, you may want to collate them into a book. This death may remind others of their own experiences and so be prepared to support them. You may find out information about a child in your class that you didn't know before. Be ready to listen to them all.
- Before they return ensure all staff are aware of the bereavement and the possible effects on them, their behaviour and their learning, so that appropriate care and support can be given throughout the setting. Remember bereaved children and young people have 'physical' illness, such as headaches, tummy aches and feeling sick, as well as mental sadness including lack of concentration, feeling tired, disorganised anger and frustration. These will have an impact on work load and learning. Monitor how things are going on their return and maintain communication with all staff involved.

- Maintain normal rules and expectations of behaviour. This is important for the children and young people within the setting and the child or young person who have been bereaved. The rules and expectations are all part of the 'normal' routine and will help to make them feel secure. Remember the impact of bereavement on the whole family when giving sanctions and the impact the sanctions may have on the whole family
- Consider 'time out' strategies that suit the child or young person and the setting. Time out cards, signals or signs can help them to exit the room quickly if they are feeling vulnerable or emotional. Make sure they have a safe place to exit to.
- Remember, there is no set pattern or time limit to grief – It is a unique experience and the process is a lifelong one. At different ages and during new or transitional times they will have new questions requiring answers and questions requiring a re-visit of what happened; to develop a better understanding and acceptance.
- It is not unusual for bereaved pupils to take time off school during the early stages of their bereavement. For some, the need to be with their families will be strong, and indeed they may suffer from separation anxiety when the time comes for a return to school. For others the familiarity, stability and routines of school life may prompt an early return. The time away from school will vary from pupil to pupil but when they do return, they may have a number of concerns – you will only know what these are and how they might be resolved if you ask. Some of the more common concerns might be:
  - How will staff and peers react– who has been told, what do they know, what will be said, how much will I have to say to people?

You can help by - meeting with them to welcome them back, acknowledge the death and talk through their concerns. Saying something simple like "I am sorry to hear that your dad died – sometimes it helps to talk about it and if so, who would you like to be there for you?" is usually much appreciated by them. If possible offer them choices about how things should be handled and what support would be helpful. Let staff and classmates know how they want to be received and supported.

- Fear of sudden emotional outbursts – anger, distress, panic...

You can help by - normalising grief reactions and giving them choices about what strategies will help them to cope in the classroom e.g. able to leave lessons without fuss – “exit card” system, where they can go, who they can talk to.

- Fear when they realise they may not remember what the deceased person looks like

A laminated photo of the deceased person may give enormous comfort when the visual image begins to disappear. A special teddy or other memento will often give great comfort in times of distress and upset. They may also want to show this when talking about the person who died. It should be stressed that whatever helps the child within reason should be encouraged.

- Fear of being behind with work and unable to catch up

You can help by - clarifying with other staff what is essential to accomplish and what can be left, and offering appropriate help to achieve what needs to be done.

- Inability to concentrate and feel motivated or sit still

You can help by - Reassuring them that this lack of motivation and concentration is normal and will pass. Offer shorter more manageable tasks, write down the task, give encouragement for achievements, and minimising difficulties can often help.

- Family grief impacting on normal family functioning

Disrupted routines, sporadic meals, chaotic bedtimes are possible reasons why they may be inadequately prepared for school, does not have the necessary equipment, and may be tired or hungry.

You can help by - Talking with them to ascertain where areas of difficulty lie and try and work out strategies with them and their family to help keep things on an even keel in school. Identify their strengths and help them build on them.

- Unable to meet homework/project deadlines because of altered responsibilities within the family and home

You can help by - helping them work out and meet priorities. Be flexible where possible and offer additional support where needed.

- Forthcoming examinations

You can help by - Explaining the process of notifying examination boards and the possible outcomes.

GUIDELINES FOR PROVIDING ON-GOING SUPPORT FOR A BEREAVED STUDENT

- If the child/young person thinks it would be helpful and friends agree, establish a peer support network – ensuring that those helping are given appropriate support themselves or seek help outside, for example, by making a referral to Simon Says.
- Ensure that the child/young person is aware of the in school bereavement support and counselling that we provide specifically for support them through their grief. This includes 1:1 counselling sessions and a bespoke support group.
- Make a note of significant dates which might affect the pupil, e.g. date of death, birthdays, Christmas, anniversaries. Make sure other members of staff are aware of these and the possible impact these may have. Don't be afraid to acknowledge these potentially difficult times with them e.g. "I know Christmas is coming up and it might feel a very different and difficult time for you all this year without your Dad – so don't forget, if it helps to talk you can always come and see me".
- Consider possible reactions to class/assembly topics. Discuss how these difficulties might best be managed with them e.g. if making Mother's day cards do ask them if they wish to be included in the activity too, very often the answer is 'yes' as they still have a parent, they just can no longer see them, but still want to remember them.
- Look out for signs of isolation, bullying or difficulties in the playground – bereaved children/young people are often seen as vulnerable and may become a target.
- Consider using books/activities to help explore feelings and ideas about death as part of the normal school curriculum (call Simon Says for further advice)
- Be alert to changes in behaviour – these may be an indication that they are more affected by their bereavement than they are able or willing to say. Reactions may present themselves months or years after the event, and it may be difficult for staff and others to relate behaviour(s) to the bereavement.
- Follow up absences – absence could indicate bereavement – associated problems at home or school.

- At transition time make sure the new class teacher and/or school are aware of the bereavement and support in situ.
- At the end of the day, be yourself, listen and care.

GUIDELINES FOR SUPPORTING A STUDENT WITH SPECIAL EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

All children benefit from being given simple, honest “bite size” pieces of information about difficult issues - often repeated many times over. For further support visit www.autism.org.uk/about/family-life/bereavement.aspx or contact Simon Says.

When talking about death and bereavement with a child with learning difficulties it might be helpful to consider: -

- WHO should be key worker working with the child and family - inform parents who this person will be and keep in contact, this should be someone they ALREADY have a good relationship with.
- WHERE is the student most receptive to new ideas? – quiet room, pool, outside. Use this space for talking with them.
- WHAT should be talked about? (as agreed with parents). Ensure that you use the same language and ideas as the family to avoid confusion.
- HOW is new information normally given? - signs, verbally, pictures. Use their normal communication methods to talk about illness and death.
- HOW is new information normally backed up? – you will probably need to repeat information a number of times over a long period. Do you need to make a social story? (www.speakingspace.co.uk will assist with this)
- PROCEED at a level, speed and language appropriate to them.
- BUILD on information given – small bites of the whole, given gradually will be easier to absorb.
- REPEAT information as often as needed.
- WATCH for reactions to show the child understands – modify and repeat as needed.
- FOLLOW the student’s lead – if indicating a need to talk or have feelings acknowledged, encourage as appropriate.
- WATCH for changes in behaviour to indicate the child is struggling more than they can say and offer support as needed.
- MAINTAIN normal daily routine as much as possible.

- LIAISE with other agencies involved with the student to ensure accuracy and continuity of information.

GUIDELINES ON HOW TO INFORM CHILDREN

Remember it is ok to show your emotions in moderation. It is important we model to children and young people healthy responses to sad news and a natural response to hearing about a death is to shed a tear.

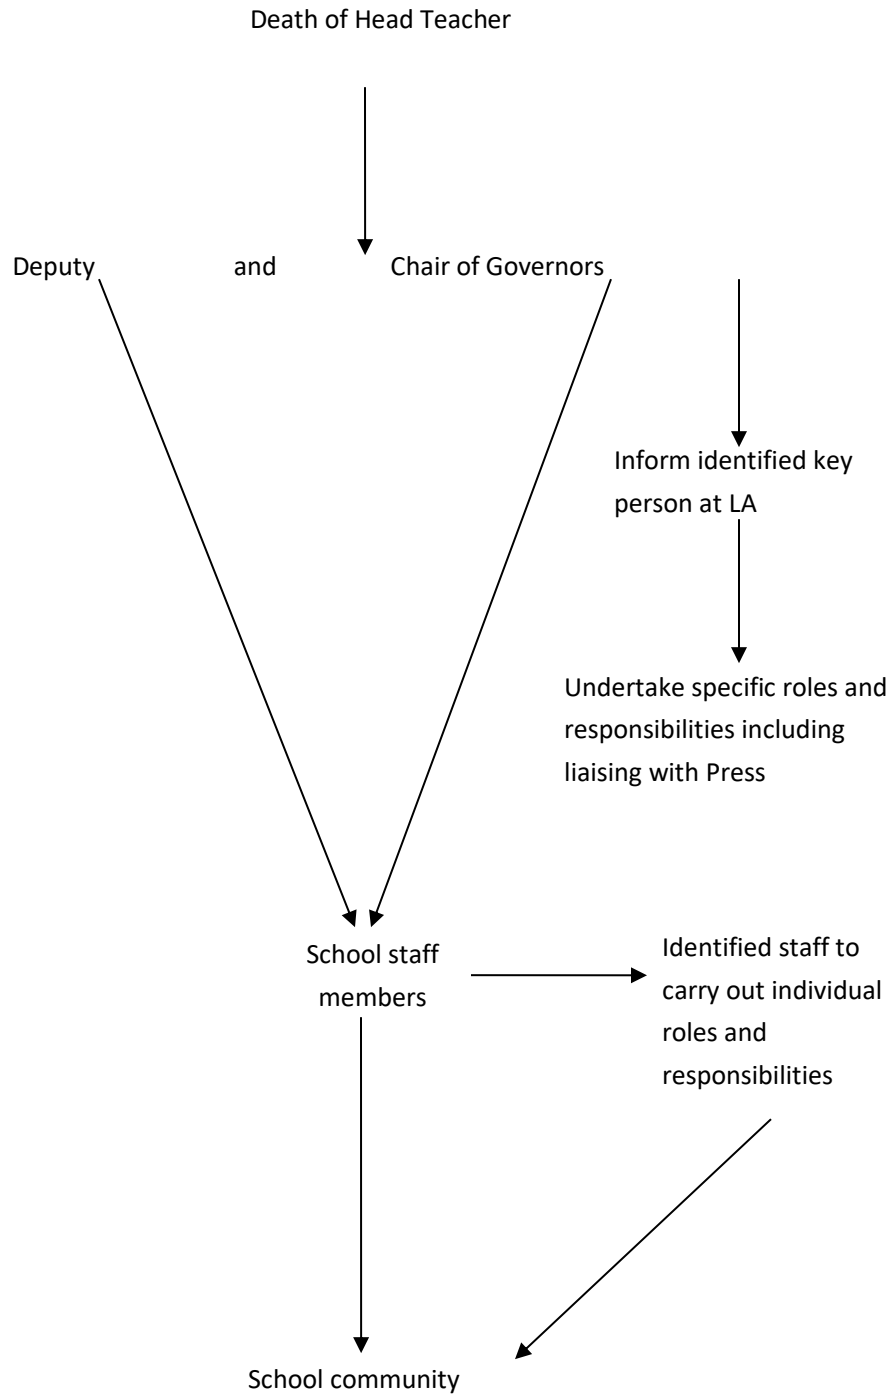

- Be honest and factual.
- Use clear language – use the person’s name, do not use euphemisms like ‘passed away’ or ‘lost’ use the words dead, died and death to avoid confusion.
- Allow the children/young people to ask questions and answer them honestly and factually in terms they will understand.
- Allow the children/young people to ask questions and answer them honestly and factually in terms that they will understand.
- Allow the children/young people to verbalise their feelings.
- Allow the children/young people to discuss the situation and share their experiences of death (even if that is the death of a pet).
- Ensure the children/young people understand that the death is nothing to do with anything they have said or done. It is in no way their fault.
- Reassure them that not all people who are ill or have had an accident will die and that many people get better.
- Acknowledge some days will be harder than others
- Do not expect to go straight into maths, allow for a time of restoration preferably with a physical outlet.
- Put an appropriate time limit on the discussion. It is preferable to resume normal school activities as soon as possible thus ensuring minimal disruption within the school day which also offers a sense of security and familiarity.

Dear Parents

Your child's class teacher had the sad task of informing the children of the tragic death of <Name>, who has been a <teacher, LSA, Lunch time supervisor...> at this school for <number> years.

Our thoughts are with <Name's> family at this time and in an effort to try and respond to his/her death in a positive, all children have been informed.

The children were told that <Name> died from an <asthma attack> on <Date>. A number of pupils have been identified as being asthmatic and <Name>, the School Nurse has today reassured them that it is unusual for a person to die from asthma.

When someone dies, their family and friends have lots of feelings - sadness, anger, and confusion - which are all normal. The children have been told that their teachers are willing to try and answer their questions at school, but I have made available some information which may help you to answer your child's questions as they arise.
